

W. James Haynie

James Haynie is a Professor Emeritus and Retired Coordinator of the Technology, Engineering and Design Education Program at North Carolina State University. He obtained his B.S from Old Dominion University in 1970, M.In.Ed. from Clemson in 1975, and Ph.D. from Penn State in 1978. With over 40 years in technology education, he has authored secondary school electronics and communications textbooks, published over 35 refereed articles and monographs, and conducted extensive research in testing and evaluation in technology education. He taught at NC State from 1986 until he retired in 2011 and was the program leader since 1995. (804)577-7714, jim_haynie@ncsu.edu

